Rotary to create musical park

by Tim Grace, Evergreen Rotary Club

The Rotary Club of Evergreen announced its 2015 Legacy Project.

The Rotary Club of Evergreen selected three nominated projects to receive its $30,000 funding for the Rotary Club's annual "Legacy Project."

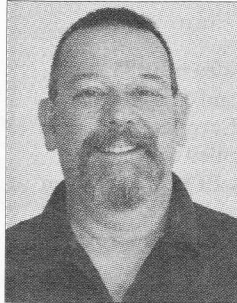

The selection process began back in January when a committee of seven Evergreen Rotarians put in place a plan to publicize the Legacy initiative to the Evergreen community. Applications for consideration were narrow down to the final three.

They were presented to the club at its meeting on Sept. 25 and the members voted for the Evergreen Rotary Musical Park to be the Legacy Project for 2015, as submitted by Kay La Montagne of Mountain Home.

The Center for the Arts new building remodeling and The Drive Smart seatbelt awareness program were the other two projects that were presented at the meeting.

The primary objective of funding annual Legacy Projects is to provide benefit to the members of the community and make Evergreen an even better place to live. A secondary benefit is the increased public awareness of the Rotary Club of Evergreen, which helps its fund-raising efforts and stimulates the recruitment of new, effective club members.

Evergreen Rotary Club Legacy Projects provide long-lasting benefits or services to our community and are sustainable.

The winning project is The Evergreen Rotary Musical Park. Kay La Montagne first came across a 'Musical Park' while camping in Moab.

It is an outdoor "musical playground" with instruments that are designed with acoustic precision and perfect tone by a Grammy Award winning musician, and are built to maintain pure and soothing tones through years of rigorous play and exposure to the elements of nature. They are perfect for musical beginners and experts alike.

The Evergreen Parks and Recreation Board has given its approval to place these outdoor instruments at Stagecoach Park.

The Rotary Musical Park will meet all Jefferson County sound ordinances and the instruments are made of steel, are winterized and easy to maintain.

The Rotary Club of Evergreen meets Fridays at 7 am at the Evergreen Country Day School, 1093 Swede Gulch Road. See more at evergreenrotary.org.
